Biography	Mary has been involved with the International Clinical Skills Conference since its outset in 2005 and is looking forward to contributing to the 10th conference in 2025. She now works in the application of assessment software across all health professions, including the assessment of clinical skills in both simulated environments (e.g. supporting digital and remote OSCE formats), and in the authentic workplace assessment of clinical skills using electronic portfolio formats.
Conferences	She established the International Clinical Skills Conferences in 2005 with a view to enhancing collaboration between (initially) the UK and Australia. The conferences are now established as an opportunity for debating and disseminating best practice on an international basis.

Mary is a founding director of the International Clinical Skills Foundation
